

Legal services in Hungary
*Lawyers you can trust
both locally and internationally*

A land of opportunity

Like many Central and Eastern European countries, Hungary is an exciting place to do business. Following its accession into the European Union, there are many opportunities and challenges for Hungarian organisations and overseas investors looking to break into this modern, sophisticated and thriving marketplace.

To get the most out of Hungary you need a law firm you can really trust to look out for your interests. One that can minimise the risks and maximise the opportunities. A law firm with the ambition to match yours and the people who can both understand and look beyond the local issues and provide advice on a larger stage when necessary.

Sándor Szegedi Szent-Ivány Komáromi Eversheds is a Hungarian law firm that can meet those needs.

To get the most out of Hungary you need a law firm you can really trust to look out for your interests.

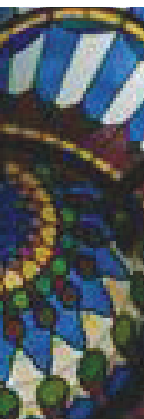

Lawyers you can trust

Established in 1999, Sándor Szegedi Szent-Ivány Komáromi Eversheds has grown steadily by providing clients with the right mix of legal expertise and strategic direction. Our multilingual team of 25 people (including six partners) is completely focused on serving the needs of those who use us, and we continue to expand to meet their demands.

Our experience in a wide range of sectors allows us to better understand the environment in which your organisation operates and the issues you face. For instance, we have represented foreign clients in the opening up of Hungary's energy, utilities and telecommunications sectors, and advised on the privatisation of the Hungarian aluminium industry.

We also make a great deal of effort to understand your company, getting to know how you work, how you like your advice delivered and the goals you are trying to achieve. We want to develop long-lasting relationships with our clients, become their trusted advisers and keep them informed of opportunities and risks to their business.

We understand your need to control legal budgets and we tailor our service to ensure that costs are minimised through efficient use of our time and a properly structured team. Our billing is clear and you will not receive any billing surprises at the end of a project.

The offices of Sándor Szegedi Szent-Ivány Komáromi Eversheds are located in Buda, within easy reach of the city centre.

What makes us truly unique is our combination of local and international resource.

A bigger stage

What makes us truly unique is our combination of local and international resource.

We have joined Eversheds International in order to offer our clients a complete service. This is a network of offices across Europe, the Middle East and Asia committed to working together and providing the same high level of service.

Being a part of this network means that we can provide our clients with experts wherever and whenever they need them: people who we trust and you can trust. It means we have the ability to put multinational teams together for the ever-increasing number of projects that require advice across different jurisdictions. The result is a law firm that can bring international expertise to your doorstep or Hungarian expertise to organisations around the world.

Who do we work for?

Our clients come from around the world and include multinationals and medium-sized companies, but we also advise small businesses and individual entrepreneurs, mostly from Europe and North America.
